

The American Society of Transplantation, representing a majority of the nation's medical professionals engaged in the field of solid organ transplantation, has been focused on meeting the needs of both its professional members and the transplant community (including living donors, organ transplant candidates and recipients, and their caregivers) at this unprecedented time for our country.

For Transplant Professionals:

- A frequently updated FAQ on organ transplantation practices
- Recommendations and guidance on organ donor testing
- An FAQ on medication access and drug shortage concerns during the COVID-19 pandemic

For the Transplant Community:

- An FAQ document, available in both English and Spanish, that is updated as needed to address questions received through the AST's Power2Save patient-focused website as well as those shared with our professional members
- COVID-19: Answering Your Transplant Questions video to address questions sent to the Power2Save website. The video included five transplant infectious disease physicians discussing these questions in a relaxed and relatable format.

In addition to these resources, the AST led a partnership with transplant organizations from around the world to learn from the experiences in Asia and Italy to better prepare for and address the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on organ donation and transplantation in the United States. The output of this partnership has been a series of webinars viewed by over 23,000 individuals to date (including live webinar participants and recording views shared through websites, social media, and YouTube). The AST is especially proud of the community's efforts to share known information and experience to best serve our patients. We will continue to use this format to help educate organ donation and transplant professionals around the world on COVID-19's impact as it continues to evolve.

The AST's co-owned medical journal, the American Journal of Transplantation, has made access to all papers dealing with COVID-19 available to the public at this time to ensure that accurate knowledge and experience is available to all during this time of crisis.

All AST resources are available to the public on its COVID-19 Information Page. We will continue to create and refresh these vital resources until this crisis is behind us all.
